August 16th: Denise Yocco - Summer of Peace Program

Running her boutique on the west end of State Street for the last 10 years, Denise Yocco has rooted the ideals of peace into her core. With the heart of a hippie, she formed a shop that promotes and expands people’s perceptions of what is possible when we put focus back into our hearts and our neighborhoods. She’s forged an environment that draws in like-minded people, along with the minds of the curious. But her monthly drum circles and her connection with the community hardly scratch the surface of what she believes she’s capable of creating.

After completing an educational program with the Shift Network labeled “Be Peace,” her ideals of peace and how the world can adopt it began to shift. She was able to shift her internal stance on peace from “What can I do?” to “How can we all?” The more she opened her life up to this idea, the more she saw and became part of a rapidly growing grassroots movement of people worldwide who feel the same way. “How can we all” take a little or a lot from this? Denise has many suggestions, starting with instilling the ideas and practices of peaceful conflict resolution into our youth—balancing education to cover not only the horrors of war, but also the miracles of peace. Allowing children to be educated in these ideas, she states, could be the catalyst to a brighter future. Putting strength and worth back into the individual, not into the fist and gun.

“Do you believe in a world without war?” It’s an extremely tough question that leads down many roads, but take a moment and ask yourself, “Do you want a world without war?” A peaceful future is possible, and strong, bold pillars in our community like Denise aren’t afraid to go after it.

If you are interested in the “Be Peace” program or in effective, simple ways you can implement peace into your life, email Denise at yoccod@gmail.com or visit her shop, Seven Stones, located at 212 West State Street.
